mechanization of Albania.

Under the aegis of the Minister of Agriculture,
Rural Development and Water Administration
Prof. Dr. Edmond Panariti

Albania moves towards modern mechanised agriculture.

The first edition of EIMA South-East Europe, an exhibition dedicated to agricultural mechanization and to agro-industrial products made in Italy is scheduled to be held in Tirana, from 13-15 June. The initiative stems from the agreement between FederUnacoma and the Albanian authorities. The cooperation involves the development of a multiannual project designed to modernize the country's agriculture and update its agricultural machinery. Eima International South-East Europe has set itself the goal of promoting Italian machinery and equipment amongst farmers in Albania and its neighbouring countries.

Technological innovation and growth.

Albania is a country predominantly dedicated to agriculture, with good water resources and a high percentage of young farmers who are striving to modernize the sector. There is a pressing need to replace an obsolete fleet of machines and introduce recent technology in order to revolutionize the agroindustrial sector. To give its own farmers access to the new technologies, the Albanian Government is developing a multiannual program that also enjoys the aid of Community funds and Italian cooperation.

Excellence in italian agricultural mechanization.

The Albanian Government has picked out Italy as its main supplier for this project, not only for its widely-acknowledged quality and technological expertise but also because Italian machinery is highly compatible with local soil and climate conditions and because it is geographically very close, thereby facilitating support operations and the supplying of spare parts.

Machinery on display at the exhibition.

Dual traction wheeled tractors, with horsepower output between 50 and 90 HP and all the accompanying equipment for tilling, sowing and fertilizing the land, plant health treatments, irrigation, product harvesting, transportation and industrial processing. But also machinery for the wine and olive-growing industry.

Not only an exhibition but also field demonstrations.

Eima South - East Europe has organized a two-day exhibition to be held on 13 and 14 June in the Palace of Congresses, a building located in the centre of Tirana in front of the offices of the President of the Republic and the Prime Minister. The covered exhibition area extends for approx. 3,000 sq.m. with the possibility also to use an external area of around 10,000 sq.m.

On 15 June, on the other hand, field demonstrations will be held on an experimental farm belonging to the Agricultural University of Tirana.

The partners.

The partner of this project are FederUnacoma and EKR - Enti Kombetar Rural, under the patronage of the Albanian Ministry of Agriculture and University of Bari, with the support of the Mediterranean Agronomic Institute, the Polytechnic University of Tirana, with the cooperation of the Fiera del Levante and Zaragoza exhibition centres.
